

I do not feel it is in the best interests of the American people for the FCC to further deregulate media ownership. We learned these lessons back in the 19th century. Too much dominance within a particular industry is detrimental to our quality of life. It seems we are headed more and more towards the old Soviet model that saw Pravda as the only source of news and information. The blurring of corporate and governmental lines and too much control in the hands of too few is not a good thing. I urge you to leave the current rules that govern media ownership in place.

Respectfully,
David A. Jones